

Our Soils

Our most fertile soils are along the rivers. From the finely textured soils of the Fundy lowland, to the soils of the Acadian Peninsula and to the farmland of the upper Saint John River, our soils give potatoes a unique and delicious flavour.

In 1997, the Holmesville Soil Series was proclaimed the New Brunswick provincial soil. This is the most prevalent soil of New Brunswick, a sandy loam to loamy soil with less than 20 per cent clay and 15-30 per cent coarse fragments that provides high yields of high-quality potatoes.
