

Seed Potatoes

New Brunswick seed potato producers are the leaders in seed potato production and have been exporting premium-quality seed potatoes for more than 100 years. Our northern climate, with its cold and snowy winters, temperate summers and abundant rainfall provide our province with ideal growing conditions, making New Brunswick free of many of the potato pathogens existing elsewhere in the world.

Each and every one of our seed potatoes come from disease-tested tissue culture stock. Each variety must meet inspection standards and has a maximum of five years of production. Post-harvest testing includes mandatory testing for BRR, thus complying with Canadian regulations and testing for Potato Leaf Roll Virus and Potato Virus Y. No seed potato shipment is sent until final inspection has taken place.
